PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

Spanish educator, curriculum developer, and scholar with more than a decade of university teaching at Tulane University and Louisiana State University. Research examines Andean Indigenous religious traditions, colonial cultural translation, and contemporary Indigenous cultural practices; current work includes a book under contract with the University of Alabama Press. Former Assistant Coordinator of Tulane's Spanish Basic Language Program, with experience in curriculum revision, assessment, faculty mentoring, and open educational resources. Teaching emphasizes communication through cultural inquiry, community engagement, and projects that allow students to demonstrate their learning in different ways.

LANGUAGE PROGRAM LEADERSHIP AND CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT

Program coordination, assessment, and faculty development

- Assistant Coordinator, Spanish Basic Language Program, Tulane University (Spring 2017): coordinated assessments among instructors and the program coordinator; designed a museum-based assessment for SPAN 2030 with the Middle American Research Institute (MARI), in which students visited the museum and studied the Maya world.
- Intermediate Spanish Syllabus Revision Committee, LSU (2024): collaborated with faculty on SPAN 2101–2102 revisions, gathered instructor feedback, and helped update syllabi and grammar sequencing.
- Intermediate Spanish Textbook Committee, LSU (2025): evaluated materials and participated in selection of the textbook adopted for Fall 2025.

- Reviewed the SPAN 2102 syllabus, course calendar, and Integrated Performance Assessment guide for alignment (Fall 2026); analyzed assessment results across four sections and recommended changes to sequencing, timing, and rubrics.
- Mentored new Spanish instructors at LSU, a contribution acknowledged in a teaching observation signed by the Spanish Language Coordinator in 2024.
- Co-Chair, WLLC Technology Committee (2026–present): organized and structured the department's shared Moodle resource hub so that materials are accessible to all WLLC language programs; developing an AI-assisted tool that helps instructors give structured feedback on student compositions.

Honors curriculum and course design

- Designed Honors Spanish courses SPAN 2103 and SPAN 2104 and collaborated with colleagues for more than two years to secure their inclusion in LSU's Honors curriculum. The proposal was approved in 2025, and SPAN 2104 is scheduled for a pilot in Spring 2027.
- Co-authored, with Dr. José Fernando Rojas, a proposal for an 18-credit Latin American Studies (LAST) minor housed in WLLC and cross-listed with other departments, requiring no new hires; submitted in 2025 and awaiting departmental action.

Project-based and community-engaged assessment

- Redesigned SPAN 2156, Intermediate Oral Communication, around cultural inquiry and a cumulative portfolio featuring a midterm podcast, research posters with QR codes linked to current sources, and a final research project; students curate Spanish-language work within an English-language portfolio.
- Used a self-developed online academic portfolio as a model for students' end-of-semester portfolios, encouraging them to document, reflect on, and present their Spanish-language projects for academic and professional audiences.
- Developed the 2026 SPAN 2156 theme "Voces que resisten," in which students research and present influential figures from Latin America and Spain.
- Integrated community engagement into SPAN 2156 (2024): students volunteered at Gardere Community Christian School and other local organizations, participated in radio and community assistance activities, shared experiences in class, and completed an end-of-semester reflection.
- Supervising an LSU student completing service-learning at McKinley Elementary School, Baton Rouge (2026).
- Designed an in-class health awareness poster campaign for Spanish for the Professions (SPAN 3070), connecting the health unit with communication about a public health issue.
